

The MOUNTAIN EAGLE

IT SCREAMS! Whitesburg, Letcher County, Kentucky, Thursday, December 7, 1967 Vol. 60, No. 30

LINEFORK FOREST UNIQUE IN NATION

A 600-acre tract of forest on Line Fork that is just like it was when white man first set foot in the mountains is attracting increasing state and national attention.

There is a growing group of conservation-minded people who would like to purchase the land, and keep it just like it is, for the enjoyment of all generations to come.

The tract and its unique stand of Kentucky mountain and Appalachian timber stands as a unique monument to the late Lilly Cornett.

Cornett bought the land, tract by tract, soon after his discharge from the Army after World War I, when timber was being cut on a vast scale throughout the mountains.

Unlike other mountain men, Cornett wouldn't let a twig be touched, and turned down all offers for the timber.

Dock Cornett, Lilly's son and administrator of his estate, recalled that "he wouldn't let us cut anything growing. We did a little clearing once, but Dad would bend over a sapling rather than let us drag something across it."

"When dad died in 1958 - he was 71 - he told us boys to do as we wished with the land," Dock Cornett recalled. "Sell it if we wanted to, he told us, or just go in and sell a tree if we needed a sack of flour or something."

Cornett said two of the four brothers had wanted to sell the land at once, but that he and another brother convinced them to carry on like their father had - to guard and preserve the land.

"What we would like to do right now, if we had the money, is give it to the state or somebody who wouldn't let it be disturbed, but we can't afford that," he said. "All we want out of it is something to live on."

The land, called Lilly's Wood in honor of Lilly Cornett, is being championed by Mrs. Austin Zimmerman, a botany instructor at Morton Arboretum near Chicago.

Mrs. Zimmerman related that she and her husband had searched and searched in vain for just one virgin stand of Appalachian timber, and happened upon Lilly's Wood when he read an account of it by Harry M. Caudill in Audubon Magazine.

Mrs. Zimmerman came down for a first-hand look.

"We measured oaks that were over five feet in diameter. Few oaks have ever reached greater size. We looked up their great boles to see their canopies, rich in fall color, spreading out 100 feet or more over our heads, and we tried to guess their age. Surely, we decided, they must have been seedlings or even saplings when the first settlers reached the shores of this new land."

"Our feet sank in rich brown forest mold that had not been washed away. We counted 26 species of trees, more than we have in our entire forest in Northeastern Illinois."

"We saw eight kinds of ferns, one, the pinnatifid spleenwort, a tiny rare fern clinging to little crevices in the sandstone cliffs high in the woods."

"In spite of the fact that it was autumn when most of the spring wildflowers have long since retreated underground, we could assemble an impressive list of ground-cover plants."

"Partridge Berry, Mountain tea, pissisewa and foam flower, all evergreen, were there. The lovely green and white netted leaves of rattlesnake plantain, an orchid, spread in a rosette beneath the dried stalk of its July bloom."

"Beech drops, parasitic on beech roots, were under all the beech trees. The beautiful scarlet and pink fruits of the strawberry bush delighted us because we had never seen them before."

Mrs. Zimmerman has been contacting various sources for help in saving the forest. She recalled battles in her own state to save undisturbed areas, and she challenged Kentuckians to do the same for Lilly's Wood.

"We know that it can be done if enough people want to do it. Monies can be raised to purchase a forest like this one for the people of all the nation to enjoy for generations to come..."

"We fervently hope that the people of Kentucky can bring themselves to find a way to preserve Lilly's Wood as it is. The people of Kentucky have the right to expect the help of all the people of this country, just as people all over the world are giving their assistance to the fight to preserve the redwood forests of California."

Dock Cornett said he and his three brothers have not set a price on the land. He declined to confirm a report they had rejected an offer of $125,000 for timber cutting rights, or an offer of $2,500 for just one tree, a giant walnut.

One problem is that a rich vein of coal runs through the property, and coal rights are owned by The Kentucky River Coal Co., which leases much of its minerals out for strip mining.

However, Bruce Stephens, vice president of Kentucky River Coal Corp., said the company has committed itself orally to waive its surface mining rights so long as the woods is preserved for public inspection.

"We agree that the forest is much too valuable to destroy if it is maintained in its present state," Stephens said. "It is a truly wonderful piece of land and ought to be taken over by the state or somebody who would guarantee its preservation forever."

Stephens said State Forester Gene Butcher has had an interest for some years in preserving the land, and attempted to start a preservation movement a few years ago.

Lilly's Wood was first brought to statewide attention in the Spring, 1965, issue of "Our Heritage" a conservation magazine published quarterly by the State Department of Natural Resources.

The 1965 magazine report said that a core sample taken by foresters revealed that one of the trees in Lilly's Wood was more than 275 years old.

The report stated that Lilly purchased 400 acres of land many years ago from "Fightin' George" Isom, a North Carolina homesteader who settled on 1,000 acres of land in the Skyline community in Letcher County. It quoted Bill Isom, the then 90-year-old son of "Fightin' George" as saying Cornett paid $5,000 for the tract.

Timber prices have skyrocketed in recent years, especially for selected trees such as the old black walnuts, and reports of sales of individual walnut trees at figures of anywhere from $500 to $3,000 a tree are not unusual in the area.

"What we want most is to keep them like it is, but we have a right to expect something reasonable, something we can live on," Dock Cornett commented.

BREATHITT SAYS "NO" TO WELFARE PAY CUTS

Eastern Kentuckians benefiting from various state and federal poverty and welfare programs were able to breathe a bit easier today as a result of developments in Frankfort and Washington.

In Frankfort, Gov. Edward T. Breathitt announced that welfare checks going to 190,000 Kentuckians will not be cut.

Breathitt's announcement came a day after State Economic Security Commissioner Leslie Dawson had announced his agency was making preparation to reduce welfare payments as part of an over-all drive to cut state spending by $24.1 in the six months remaining in the current fiscal year.

Breathitt said "there is no need for cuts in the welfare checks of public assistance recipients in the remainder of this fiscal year."

Breathitt said the required $3.47 million budget cuts in the economic security department can be accomplished in the Medicaid and administrative budgets of the department, without reducing present welfare checks.

Indications were that budget savings would come through delaying the start of two changes in the program voted last week by the Kentucky Advisory Council for Medical Assistance. One of the changes would raise Medicaid payments to nursing homes to equal those of Medicare. The other change would pay physicians "usual and customary" fees for treating needy persons outside hospitals, instead of fixed fees.

OEO CHANCES BRIGHTEN In Washington, an agreement on a compromise Office of Economic Opportunity-war on poverty bill brightened chances that the poverty program can continue in Eastern Kentucky for another year without major cutbacks.

The house of representatives had approved a bill which would have required local communities in Eastern Kentucky and elsewhere to put up in cash 10 percent of the total cost of the poverty programs. In the four-county area of which Letcher County is a part, this would have meant that local communities would have to make a cash donation of some $300,000 a year to continue the program. There appeared to be no possibility that this could happen, and the ultimate effect of the house bill would have been to eliminate the poverty program from the mountains.

The compromise bill agreed to by the house-senate committee would permit mountain counties to continue making "in-kind" donations as their share of the program cost. This means that the local agencies can claim matching credit for donated rent, donated material, etc., and thus continue in operation.

Another major change agreed to by the house-senate committee would delay until Feb. 1, 1969, the effective date of the highly controversial "Green Amendment" which would have done away with the independent status of present OEO community action programs, and would have transferred them to traditional local governmental agencies for administration.

NUNN NAMES OFFICERS

Louis B. Nunn, who will take office as governor of Kentucky on December 12, has announced several key appointments for his state administration.

W. B. Hazelrigg, 48, Paintsville, commonwealth's attorney in Johnson and Martin counties, was named Kentucky State Commissioner of Highways, to replace Henry Ward.

Albert Christen, Louisville, a certified public accountant, was named state commissioner of finance.

Alex McIntyre, 48, Hazard, was appointed as commissioner of motor transportation.

James E. Luckett, Frankfort, was re-appointed as state commissioner of revenue. Luckett is a career employee, and held the same post under Governors Chandler and Breathitt.

Allan K. Carrell, 58, a former president of the Kentucky Sanitary Bedding Co., Louisville, was named state adjutant general.

Larry Clark Dawson, 55, a Louisville insurance executive, was named deputy adjutant general for the Army.

John W. (Boots) Young, former president of the Louisville board of aldermen, was named state commissioner of labor.

Robert W. Moore, 45, of Glasgow, was appointed state aeronautics commissioner. He was a World War II pilot who shot down a dozen Japanese planes.

E. G. Adams, 37, Hopkinsville banker, was named state commissioner of banking.

Warren Schweder, 46, former Lexington Leader staff writer and executive director of the GOP State Central Committee, was named as press secretary for the governor.

Hazelrigg, the new highway commissioner, was Nunn's running mate in the GOP primary election. He lost the GOP nomination to Pike County Commonwealth's attorney Thomas B. Ratliff, who then lost the general election to Democrat Wendell Ford of Owensboro.

Hazelrigg has been commonwealth's attorney for 12 years. Prior to that he was an attorney for the Veterans Administration for nine years, and served on the attorney general's staff in the Republican administration of Gov. Simeon Willis 20 years ago. He is a graduate of the old Jefferson School of Law in Louisville, and of Western Kentucky University.

Heart attack fatal to Milburn Polly

Milburn Polly, 60, one of Letcher County's best-known citizens, died December 3 following a heart attack.

He had been a barber in Whitesburg since 1928. He operated a shop with Sam Blair until illness forced Blair's retirement a few weeks ago.

Funeral services were held Wednesday, December 6, at the First Baptist Church in Whitesburg. Ministers were the Rev. David Morrow and Elder Ray Collins. Burial was in the family plot of the Hall Cemetery at Ermine. Moore and Craft Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Polly was survived by his widow, Mrs. Sillar Reynolds Polly; by his mother, Mrs. Francis Hall, and by the following children:

Raymond Lee Polly, Georgetown, Ind., and Mrs. Helen Sue Bierie, Dover, O.; one brother, John Polly, Kona; three half brothers, Bradley Hall, of Missouri; Theodore Newberry, of Florida; Bill Newberry of California, and a half-sister, Mrs. Mabel Kiser of Detroit.

He was a member of the First Baptist Church and of the masonic lodge of Whitesburg.

The coming thing? CORPS' NEW PLAN FOR ROYALTON MAY AFFECT ULVAH DAM

What kind of dam is in Letcher County's future?

Some indications of current U. S. Corps of Engineers thinking are contained in a corps proposal for a new dam in Magoffin County.

According to Louisville District Corps Chief R. R. Wessels, much the same kind of thinking is embraced in the Corps' tentative plans for a Letcher County dam.

The Magoffin County plan calls for a $25 million dam on the upper Licking River, near Royalton, 12 miles upstream from Salyersville.

What's so new and different about the Salyersville plan?

The difference is that, in addition to the $25 million for the dam structure itself, the corps would spend an additional $17 million on extra trimmings.

Key elements in the "extras" would be:

1. Development of an 1800-acre area of land, made flood-free by the dam, for industrial, commercial and residential expansion, at a cost of some $9 million.

2. A land treatment program on some 44,000 in the upper Licking Basin in areas of significant erosion, at a cost of $1,440,000.

3. Improvements to 14.7 miles of the Licking River channel at a cost of $4,500,000.

4. Construction of two small flood water retarding structures and a multiple-purpose structure on two forks of the Licking in the immediate Salyersville area, to protect the town from danger from these tributaries. Costs would be $2,085,000.

The corps estimated that these investments would bring $200 million in private investments in the area during the next 50 years.

"These investments," the corps said, "would strengthen the economic growth and development in Kentucky Appalachia as well as providing substantial benefits to the nation's economy."

The extras all were written into the corp Licking River proposal as a result of special provisions of the Appalachian Regional Development legislation by Congress. This special and unique section permits the corps to include in its cost-benefit calculations the special economic benefits which would accrue to an area following construction of a dam.

Wessels, in his appearance before the Whitesburg Rotary Club last week, said that the Salyersville-Royalton-Magoffin County proposal was the first to be drafted by the corps under the new provisions of the Appalachian Act.

He said the corps and others interested in Appalachian development were watching to see whether the new concepts would be accepted first by the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors, an agency which reviews all Corps of Engineers projects, and then by Congress, which ultimately must approve and finance all Corps activities.

Wessels told the Whitesburg Rotarians that none of the numerous previous feasibility studies of the Kentucky River in the Blackey-Ulvah area had produced an economically sound project. Up until now, he said, costs of the project have been found to be greater than the projected benefits.

Wessels said the feasibility of a Kentucky River project was being recalculated under the special provisions of the Appalachian Act.

There was a strong implication in his remarks that he believes that the Letcher County project, already labeled the "Kingdom Come Dam" on Army Corps' maps, will be found to be feasible.

Presumably, the Kingdom Come Dam project, much larger than the Salyersville-Royalton project, would include similar programs for development of an industrial area and for such things as recreation and land reclamation.

Wessels indicated that the first major hurdle for the Royalton project would be its consideration by the Rivers and Harbors board.

The Rivers and Harbors board this past week acted upon the Royalton project favorably.

The board, calling the project "a radical departure" from past Corps of Engineers dam building, commented:

"The water development plan will spark the economic development of the area and aid it to become economically viable."

The following descriptive matter is taken from an official Corps statement:

"The multiple purpose reservoir at Royalton would be developed for flood control, water supply, water quality control and recreation, including fish and wildlife recreation. The 100-foot-high dam would be located about one mile upstream from Royalton, Kentucky. It would control 75.6 square miles of watershed, or 54 per cent of the area above Salyersville. The dam and reservoir are completely within Magoffin County. The reservoir, when full, as a result of flood operations, would contain 64,500 acre feet of water, have a surface of 2,280 acres and extend about 14.8 miles upstream from the dam. During the recreation season the normal pool would have a surface area of 1,080 acres and extend 11.2 miles upstream. During the remainder of the year the normal pool would have a surface area of 860 acres and extend 10.4 miles above the dam. In terms of storage, 49,000 acre feet are for flood control, 4,100 acre feet are for water supply and water quality control and 11,400 acre feet are for sediment storage and maintenance of a minimum pool. Principal features of the project, in addition to the dam, are a 150 foot wide uncontrolled spillway through a saddle near the west (left) abutment of the dam and relocation of 12 miles of State Route 7, 2 miles of State Route 542 and 15 miles of county roads."

It is what is called "the fifth element" of the Royalton plan that is so new and different, and which carries important implications for Letcher and Perry Counties should the Kingdom Come dam be constructed.

In the words of the Corps:

"The fifth element is a plan for the economic, or industrial development of the area, made possible by the water resources elements and is composed of three components. They are:

1. A land use plan which provides for the orderly industrial, commercial, and residential development of about 1800 acres of previously undevelopable land.

2. A public facilities and utilities plan which includes such items as new schools, health facilities, and enlargement of water supply and sewage treatment facilities.

3. A transportation plan which consists of approximately 21 miles of new and improved streets and highways, and some increased railroad facilities."

The Corps goes on to say about its fifth element:

"The fifth element of the plan provides for industrial, commercial and residential expansion on about 1,800 acres which will be made relatively flood free by the water control elements of the plan. Federal and non-federal agencies would provide urban facilities and utilities estimated to cost about $9,000,000 and assist in carrying out the developmental plan. These activities are expected to stimulate private investments of about $200,000,000 over the next 50 years. These investments, together with that for water resources development, totaling about 241 million dollars, would strengthen the economic growth and development in Kentucky Appalachia as well as providing substantial benefits to the nation's economy."

The official Corps map of the project, reproduced above, indicates that the 1800 acres of land picked for industrial development is located downstream from the dam.

It is this downstream location for economic growth that would appear to be a major threat to Letcher County - should there be a similar project here.

The Kingdom Come Dam would be located close to the Perry County line - so close that it is probable that any site selected for industrial development by the Corps would be located in Perry County - and NOT in Letcher County.

This would have an obvious effect. Perry County's payrolls and taxable properties would be increased several times above present levels. Letcher County, with no offsetting industrial development, would find its payrolls and taxable wealth greatly reduced from present levels.

Students want voice on college boards

Georgetown - The Kentucky Intercollegiate Press Association unanimously supported a resolution favoring student representation on governing bodies of all colleges and universities in Kentucky.

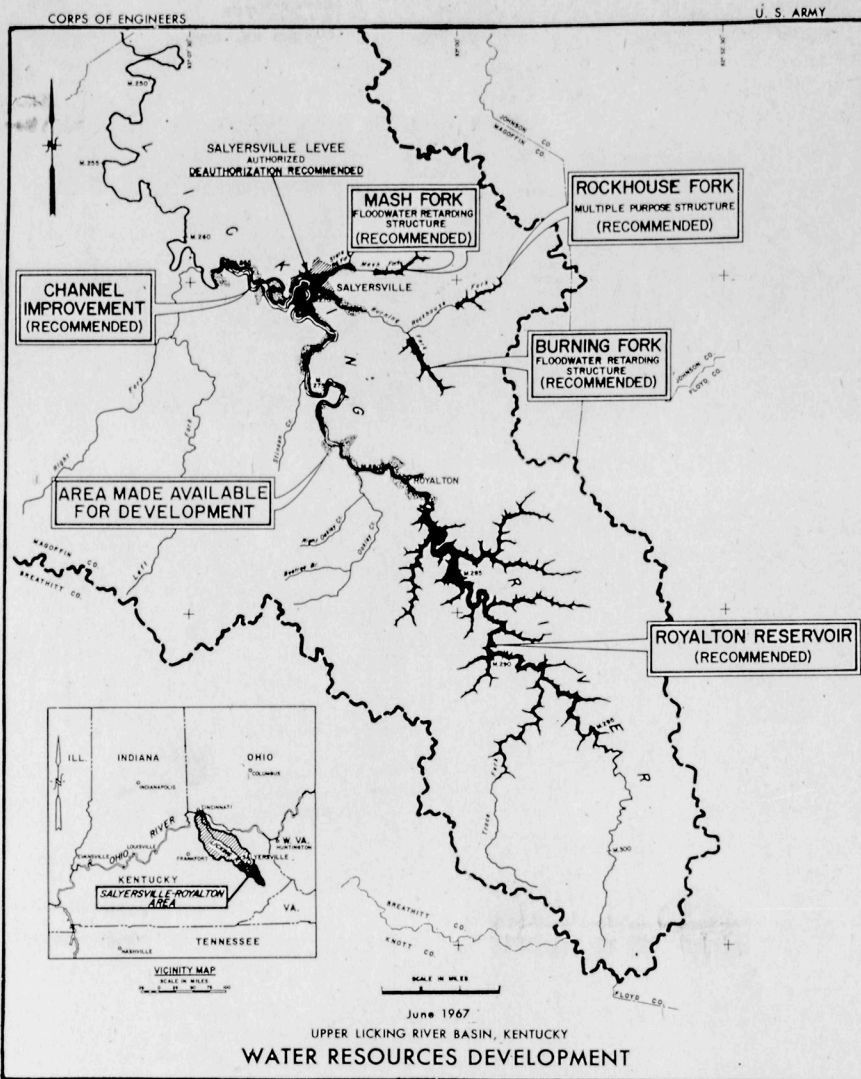

Student seats on boards of trustees have been endorsed in principle by Gov. Edward T. Breathitt, Governor-elect Louis B. Nunn, Lt. Governor-elect Wendell Ford, and the Kentucky Student Association.

The campus press organization also took first steps toward providing a statewide news service for campus papers. KIPA said it will furnish members with information and plan "concerted editorial campaigns" on two issues that may surface at the 1968 General Assembly - A campus speaker ban, and student representation on college governing boards.

KIPA president John A. Zeh, a University of Kentucky communications senior, said a convention discussion of "Student Power and the Student Press in Kentucky" had shown a need for "an immediate and a continuing appraisal of the situation in Kentucky."

Those elected to serve as advisers to KIPA for the 1967-68 academic year included Glen Kleine, adviser to the Eastern Progress at Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond, and Kenneth Vance, of the Public Affairs Department at Morehead State University.

Other advisers include Mrs. Jane Vance of Georgetown College, and Mrs. Lois Sutherland, adviser to the student newspaper at the Northern Community College of the University of Kentucky, Covington.

MULLOY SAYS HE'LL RESIST DRAFT, IS DISMISSED FROM AV STAFF

Joe Mulloy, Pikeville, a central figure in the Pike County sedition controversy, has been fired from his position as a staff member of the Appalachian Volunteers.

The action was taken by AV director Milton Ogle on recommendation of AV staff.

The firing came after Mulloy told the AV organization that he expects to be drafted within the next few weeks and that he will refuse to serve in the army. He said his decision is based on his opposition to the war in Vietnam.

Mulloy's decision was the subject of a day-long debate and argument among AV staff members at a meeting at Jenny Wiley State Park this past week end. Following the discussion, the following resolution was introduced:

"Because of Joe Mulloy's declared position on the draft and the Vietnam war and the likelihood of it being identified as a stand of the AV program, the Kentucky AV staff recommends that Joe Mulloy be fired immediately and given two months' severance pay."

The resolution was adopted by a vote of 20-19, with three abstentions, and presented to AV director Ogle.

Ogle explained his action in a brief statement issued after the meeting:

"Joe Mulloy was officially relieved of his responsibilities as an AV field man when he made known his decision to refuse to be drafted into the armed services when he is called."

"Mr. Mulloy's decision was made with the full knowledge of the consequences of his contemplated actions, and it was based on his convictions about the Vietnam war. The decision was regarded by the AVs as rendering him ineffective to work with the people of the Appalachian mountains."

Mulloy last August 11 was arrested by Pike County authorities in a midnight raid on his home, and was charged with sedition. He had been working with Pike County landowners in a fight to protect their land against strip mining. Prosecution was dropped after a federal court ruled that Kentucky's sedition law was unconstitutional. Investigations by the Office of Economic Opportunity and the Federal Bureau of Investigation found the charges to have been politically motivated, and groundless.

Mulloy was ordered to report for induction on August 18 and appealed for reclassification as a conscientious objector. His draft board in Louisville so far has refused his appeal (he had previously applied for occupational deferment and had been refused) and he expects to receive another induction notice in a few weeks.

After the meeting at which he was fired from the AV staff, Mulloy wrote and released the following statement:

"I have spent three years of my life working for the war on poverty in Appalachia. During this time I have seen and learned much about poverty and how our government operates. It is my considered opinion that the government of the United States is not seriously interested in doing anything about poverty or in guaranteeing a true democracy in this country. The Green Amendment, which would put anti-poverty money directly into the hands of those who prosper most from poverty, is the most recent example of the attitude of our lawmakers.

"Today I have been fired by the federally-financed Appalachian Volunteers because of my position on Vietnam and the draft. My position is that there are far too many problems, injustices and inequalities in these United States for us to play policeman of the world. If this country would only take care of its own problems, I believe that there would be no need to worry about 'isms' of the left or right.

"But our President and others would have us fight and die in Asia before they would guarantee a truly free society at home - in Eastern Kentucky, in Mississippi, in Detroit.

"Ours is the richest nation the world has ever known. But it is the poor and the black who are sent to the other side of the world to protect the rich. Poverty in Eastern Kentucky and the war in Vietnam are the same issue. The advocates of war and the businesses that prosper from it are the same absentee landlords that have robbed Eastern Kentucky blind for years.

"I have stated that I will resist induction into the army. I must do this to bear witness to the hypocrisy of our government's position and the crimes being committed by this government in Vietnam. I explained this stand to the staff of the Appalachian Volunteers, which decided it would create problems for the organization, and voted to fire me.

"I am not a crusader. But now I call on all of us to resist. If we do not, the United States is doomed to become a place where people cannot speak out. If that happens it will become a dictatorship, and history will curse our name."

GOOD FISHING ALL YEAR LONG—In Kentucky the fishing season is always open and, according to the State Parks Department, good catches are made at all Kentucky reservoirs during the late fall and winter months. Testifying to this fact are Byron Watson of Lexington and John Lyon of Frankfort who took this string of mixed bass from Lake Cumberland. State Park boat docks remain open the year-round to accommodate fishermen.

Morehead to start campus ROTC

Morehead - Morehead State University President Adron Doran announced official approval has been received from Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor for a senior Reserve Officers Training Corps program on the campus.

Doran said the new program is expected to begin at Morehead with the fall, 1968, semester.

The ROTC program will be required for all freshmen males who are physically capable, the announcement said. University officials said no branch of service will be stressed in the new program, but that it will be a "general military science program" in which all 14 branches of the service will be taught, with students being given the opportunity to select the branch of service for which they want to train for a possible commission.

Both a four-year and an accelerated two-year program will be offered, and eventually a military staff of 10 officers and seven or eight non-commissioned men is expected to be assigned to the campus to staff the program in which more than 1,000 freshmen and upperclassmen are expected to be enrolled beginning next fall.

Store disqualified

Atlanta, Ga. - The U. S. Department of Agriculture announced it has disqualified a Hazard store, Grimes Grocery, from taking part in the food stamp program for six months.

The store and its operator, Mrs. Jessie Marie Grimes, were accused of selling ineligible items and accepting coupons as repayment of back bills.

The suspension was for a six-month period, after which Mrs. Grimes may reapply for reinstatement of her store in the stamp program, the department said.

RESIDENTS WATCHED WITH INTEREST AND SPECULATION AS MEMBERS OF EERIE STONE PROCESSION PLACED

An eerie procession keeps weird watch over a single grave in Mayfield, Kentucky. There, in Maplewood Cemetery, are the Woolldridge Monuments, one of the world's strangest memorials to the dead. For over 50 years, visitors to Mayfield have paused at the cemetery to gaze at the odd assortment of 16 statues, all facing the same direction, seemingly frozen in the midst of a ghostly walk.

Every small town has had its eccentric personality, and Mayfield's was a bachelor gentleman, "Colonel" Henry Woolldridge. An energetic man of aristocratic background, Woolldridge was an avid hunter and sportsman and made a good living trading horses. In spite of such lively interests, he was preoccupied with death. In his later years, he determined to be remembered after passing on.

About 1892, he bought a plot in the local cemetery and erected a tombstone—a handsome shaft of marble carved with his name, date of birth, a Masonic emblem and the figure of a horse. It was the first of a series of memorials that would include figures of himself and the persons and animals he had loved.

When the colonel died at the age of 77, he had purchased his casket and burial robe, erected more monuments and spent several thousands of dollars to assure his lasting memory.

The group of statues includes a standing likeness of Woolldridge, and another of him astride his favorite horse, "Fop." Behind these are placed the figures of his three sisters, and three of his brothers are before him. His father and mother, two small girls, a grand-niece and dear little girl friend, stand nearby. Caught in action forever are his foxhound "Bob" chasing a stone fox, and "Tow head," his beloved deer hound, at the heels of a fleeing deer. In the midst of this unusual aggregation is the Colonel's grave—a vault above the ground, topped by a marble slab that bears a carving of his trusty gun.

The people of Mayfield watched the growth of the immortal parade with great interest and much speculation. This seems natural, for Woolldridge made a number of curious decisions in the creation of his outdoor "hall of fame." Even though he was determined to have lasting monuments of his loved ones, he was very offhand in his instructions to the stone-cutter. When ordering the statue of himself and "Fop" he provided no more details than that his horse, long dead, was to be 15 hands high and well proportioned. He did not even go to the cutter's place of business to confer with the man, sending only an old, faded tintype of himself as a guide for the lifesize statue.

The stone faces of his sisters and brothers are all very much alike, thus giving rise to the tale that one of the women was modeled after the love of his youth, a fiancée who was killed accidentally in a fall from a horse.

Other tales about the unusual man and his monuments, whether true or not, are further proof that the Colonel succeeded in his aim. He has not been forgotten by the residents of Mayfield or its visitors.

Mayfield is in the Western Warterland section of Kentucky, 28 miles from Kentucky Lake and Lake Barkley, on US 45 and KY 80.

KENTUCKY HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT OFFERS SCHOLARSHIPS TO ENGINEERS

Lexington - Kentucky high school graduates interested in a civil engineering career with emphasis on highway engineering were reminded this week of the Student Engineering Employment Scholarships available through the Kentucky Department of Highways.

Prof. David K. Blythe, chairman of the civil engineering department at UK, said the scholarships, awarded annually since 1948, can continue through all four years of college.

There are 30 scholarships. They pay eligible students $95 a month while they are in college and $293 a month as summer engineering helpers in the highway department. They are offered to high school students who rank in the upper two-fifths of their class.

Prof. Blythe estimates that the earnings from summer work plus monthly allowances during the academic year "should provide enough funds to cover all necessary expenses."

Scholarship students are required to work during the summer with the Department of Highways. They sign a contract with the department covering summer employment.

Interested students, Prof. Blythe said, should write promptly if they want to be considered for the 1968 program, to: Prof. David K. Blythe, Civil Engineering Department, College of Engineering, University of Kentucky, Lexington. Full information concerning application for one of the 30 scholarships will be mailed to the prospective student.

Scholarship students will be selected on the basis of American College Test scores and their high school class standing. Final selection will be made by the University of Kentucky scholarship committee.

Tests find cancer

FRANKFORT--The State Department of Health reports that 5,4 of every 1,000 women tested in its cervical cancer program have cervical cancer.

The report is the result of one year of operating the program. An appropriation by the Legislature for the program became effective July 1, 1966.

Dr. Donald Austin, cancer control officer of the department's Division of Epidemiology, says the national casefinding rate is six in 1,000.

During the first year of operation, more than 6,000 women took the Pap test in program clinics. Of 67 women whose tests showed the possibility of cervical cancer, 30 were diagnosed as having cancer, 26 as not having it and 11 are taking further tests.

The report says that most of the 30 cancer cases were diagnosed early enough for an expected cure rate of 100 per cent.

Letcher soldier helps repair Vietnam road

TUY HOA, VIETNAM--A highway isn't much good when it spends a part of each year under water.

But a sector of highway QL-1 in Vietnam between Tuy Hoa and Yung Mo Bay had just that problem, and Company B of the 35th Engineer Group's 577th Engineer Battalion was assigned to end the problem.

Army Specialist Four Ronnie W. Combs, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Combs of Colson, was one of those from Company B who worked round the clock to complete the job before the monsoon season arrived.

Hauling rock from the battalion quarry 20 miles away, the company widened the entire road bed and then raised it 12 inches within the scheduled time of completion.

Specialist Combs is a truck driver with the company. His wife, Mary, lives at Seco.

R-27. The United States of America has agreed to make a loan under Title I of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1450 et seq.), to the Local Public Agency to assist the latter in undertaking and carrying out such Project. By authority of said Act and with the agreement of the Local Public Agency, the said Notes are to be unconditionally secured as to the payment of both principal and interest by the United States of America. The full faith and credit of the United States of America will be pledged to such payment under an unequalled payment agreement endorsed on each of the Notes. Under said Act, such agreement is required to be construed by all officers of the United States separate and apart from said loan agreement and is incontestable in the hands of a bearer thereof.

THE NOTES will be dated January 16, 1968, will be payable to bearer on January 17, 1969, will bear interest from their date to their maturity at the rate or rates per annum fixed in the proposal or proposals accepted for the purchase of such Notes, will be issued in such denominations, and both principal and interest thereof will be payable at such incorporated Bank having trust powers or incorporated Trust Company, as the purchaser designates in the proposal. Such Bank or Trust Company must be a member of the Federal Reserve System, or of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, and must have an unimpaired capital and surplus of not less than the aggregate principal amount of Notes designated in the proposal or proposals submitted by the purchaser; provided, however, that such unimpaired capital and surplus need not exceed One Million Dollars. The Notes will provide that they are not valid until after such Bank or Trust Company has signed the agreement, appearing on each Note, to act as paying agent. The Notes will be transmitted to such Bank or Trust Company for delivery to the purchaser upon receipt and disbursement by such Bank or Trust Company of the purchase price thereof in accordance with instructions from the Local Public Agency. After taking delivery of the Notes, the purchaser shall obtain the signature of such Bank or Trust Company upon the Notes as aforesaid. All fees or charges, if any, of such Bank or Trust Company shall be paid by such purchaser.

SAID NOTES will be special obligations of the Local Public Agency and will be secured by a requisition agreement between the Local Public Agency and the United States of America under the terms of which agreement the United States of America agrees to lend the Local Public Agency prior to the maturity of said Notes an amount sufficient to pay the principal and interest of all said Notes and agrees to cause so much of the proceeds of such loan as shall be sufficient to pay the principal of and interest upon any of said Notes to be deposited at the respective Bank or Trust Company at which said Notes are payable for the benefit of the holder or holders thereof. Under the proceedings authorizing said Notes, the proceeds of such loan payment will be irrevocably pledged first to the payment, at maturity, of the principal of and interest on said Notes.

THE VALIDITY of the Notes and said requisition agreement shall be subject to approval by attorneys designated by the purchaser in the Proposal. Complete certified transcripts of proceedings, including organization transcript as required, evidencing the validity of the Notes and of said requisition agreement will be furnished such attorneys at least 5 days prior to the date of the Notes. The fees or charges of the attorneys shall be paid by the purchaser.

ALL PROPOSALS for the purchase of any of said Notes shall be submitted in a form approved by the Local Public Agency and shall be enclosed in a sealed envelope, addressed to the Local Public Agency, which should be marked on the outside "Proposal for Preliminary Loan Notes." Copies of such form of proposal may be obtained from the Local Public Agency at the address indicated above. Proposals may be submitted subject to completion pursuant to telegraphic instructions or proposals may be submitted in their entirety by telegram. Telegraphic instructions or proposals must be received by the Local Public Agency at or before the time above specified for the opening of proposals. A telegraphic proposal should identify and be made pursuant to the Notice of Sale, identify the Notes, and specify the principal amount, interest rate, premium, denominations, name of said attorneys, and place of payment of the Notes covered by the proposal. In view of certain statutory and policy limitations, no award of the Notes will be made at an interest rate per annum which is not less than four and one-eighth per centum (4-1/8%).

PROPOSALS may be for all or any part of the Notes, and separate proposals will be required for each part of said Notes for which a separate interest rate is bid. The interest rate specified for each part of said Notes shall be a multiple of one-hundredth (1/100) of one percent (1%). Said Notes will be awarded at the lowest interest rate or rates offered in the proposals, without reference to premium; provided, however, that, as among proposals specifying the same lowest interest rate, award will be made on the basis of the highest premium per dollar principal amount of Notes specified in such proposals. No bid for less than $50,000 principal amount of said Notes or for less than par and accrued interest (which interest shall be computed on a 360-day basis) will be entertained, and the Local Public Agency reserves the right to award to any bidder all or any part of the Notes which such bidder offers to purchase in his proposal, upon the basis of such proposal; provided that if less than $50,000 principal amount of Notes is to be awarded to any bidder, such bidder will be relieved of the obligation to purchase such Notes upon written notice to the Local Public Agency within two days after notification of such proposed award. If only a part of the Notes bid for in a proposal are awarded by the Local Public Agency, the premium if any, offered in such proposal shall be prorated, and said Notes will be issued in denominations in the order of the lowest denominations specified in such proposal; provided that one Note may be issued in a smaller denomination than is otherwise specified. The further right is reserved to reject any or all proposals.

SECTION 102(g) of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1452), provides as follows: "Obligations, including interest thereon, issued by local public agencies for projects assisted pursuant to this title, and income derived by such agencies from such projects, shall be exempt from all taxation now or hereafter imposed by the United States." In the event that prior to the delivery of any of the Notes to the successful bidder therefor the income received by private holders from obligations of the same type and character shall be taxable by the terms of any Federal income tax law hereafter enacted, the successful bidder may, at his election, be relieved of his obligations under the contract to purchase said Notes.

Some notions about clothes dryers are all wet!

They may all look alike. But, there's an enormous difference in clothes dryers. PRICE? Electric dryers cost less to buy . . . as much as $40 less than the flame-type. DEPENDABILITY? With fewer moving parts and no pilot light, there's less to go wrong. CLEAN DRYING? There's no dirt, no by-products of combustion, no fumes. PLACEMENT? Install a flameless dryer anywhere with one electrical connection. OPERATING COST? Families in this area pay an average of about $1 a month for electric clothes drying. VERSATILITY? Modern electric dryers are flamelessly safe for today's miracle fabrics . . . yet dry heavy things fast. VALUE? It's America's favorite dryer, preferred by women two to one over flame-type drying. You can move up to electric drying at the lowest cost ever right now, by taking advantage of special money-saving wiring certificates available to our customers. Ask your appliance dealer for details.

JENKINS CAVALIERS LOSE TO LETCHER HIGH, BEAT CUMBERLAND AND M. C. NAPIER

After an opening loss to Letcher County, the Cavaliers took two ball games over the weekend. At Friday night's victory Jenkins won by 34 points over the Cumberland Redskins. On Saturday night Jenkins defeated the M. C. Napier Navajos 69-37. Jenkins record now stands at two and one. The victory Saturday night gave Jenkins a 1-0 record in conference play.

In the Cumberland game Jenkins shot a poor 27% from the floor. At intermission the Cavaliers held only a 29-19 advantage. Jenkins offense has not of yet started in high gear even though the Cavaliers have out rebounded all opponents so far. None of the starters have stepped forward to take the leadership that was lost when Roger Greer graduated.

Joe Louis Cooper and Danny Henderson played good ball for the Cavaliers. Cooper showed some of the promise that he is capable of in every game. Against Cumberland, Henderson came off the bench and showed good poise. With Henderson and Steve Collins, along with Jimmy Bentley, the Cavaliers should have eight good men along with the starters.

Eddie Conley played a good defensive game along with Sergeant and Bellomy. Conley seems to be pressing just a bit with his shots; one hot night should change the situation.

Cumberland is in the midst of a rebuilding program which should improve as the year goes by. The box score for the Cumberland game is:

Cumberland	Points	Rebounds

Saturday night Jenkins took on a good M. C. Napier team which they soundly defeated. Jenkins for the first time ran, passed and shot the ball as everyone knew they were capable of doing. This was a team victory with several boys looking good. Joe Cooper was the leading scorer with twenty points, followed by Eddie Conley with eighteen. The region seems wide open and the team who wants to get in the sweet sixteen the most can go.

FOOTBALL HONORS CAME TO JENKINS

The Jenkins football team finished with a 7-4 record for the season, and also captured some awards given by the Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference.

Roy Wright was named to the all-conference team. Roy is a senior at Jenkins, who plans to attend Morehead State University.

Jimmy Bentley, David Toth and Jimmy Bellomy were named to the second team. Bentley was picked as an end, although he played several games at halfback. Toth was selected as a guard, but he had often played well on defense as a line backer during the season. Bellomy was a quarter back, and missed being named most valuable player by one vote.

Leon Guyton of Belfry was voted most valuable player. Shorty Jamerson and Walter Thomas were elected co-coaches for the year.

Belfry was first in team standings with Whitesburg second. Jenkins was third in games won and lost, finished third overall.
